

B.O.S.S. is the nation's largest network of underrepresented professionals in the solar photovoltaic (PV) industry. Our members include entrepreneurs, financiers, veterans, attorneys, engineers, ...

As the first Black woman in the U.S. to own a community solar company, Kristal is not only driving innovation in clean energy but also leading the charge for energy equity and social justice.

Kristal Hansley is breaking barriers and revolutionizing the green energy industry with her company, WeSolar. As the first Black woman to own a community solar energy company, Hansley is ...

Founded by inventor and engineer Matthew N. Portis, the company has installed their Evoida Solar Power Workstations at several HBCUs including Bowie State University and UDC, and ...

Trinasolar, in collaboration with Monash University Clayton Campus in Australia, used Vertex N Black Transparent Aesthetic Modules to build a PV carport with a total capacity of 722.4kw, sending green ...

The African-American Business Guide reports Hansley's effective leadership has allowed WeSolar to be a fast-growing company that provides affordable solar energy to consumers ...

Volt Energy Utility is a national renewable energy firm that finances and develops utility-scale solar and energy storage projects for large corporate clients, municipalities, and other...

EcoWatch explains why supporting Black-owned solar companies is so important for racial equity and climate justice, and put together an incredible list of companies you can support today.

By leading WeSolar, Kristal is setting an example for future generations of Black entrepreneurs and showing that renewable energy can be both inclusive and transformative.

Supporting Black-owned businesses in solar combats racial and environmental injustices. We highlight leading minority-owned renewable energy companies here.

Web: <https://rrrprojects.co.za>