

Is solar power a 'business essential' for UK companies?

With energy bills still squeezing margins and sustainability targets climbing the priority list, solar power has shifted from 'nice-to-have' to 'business essential' for UK companies. It's a move that locks in cheaper energy, strengthens your green credentials, and yes - gives you a little extra swagger over the competition.

What is solar technology in London?

Solar technology remains a cornerstone of renewable energy in London. Companies like Solarcentury and Lightsource bp provide comprehensive solar solutions, including design, installation, and maintenance of photovoltaic (PV) systems.

Why are UK businesses switching to solar?

UK firms are switching on to solar in record numbers - and it's easy to see why. Even though energy prices have eased slightly from their peak, most businesses are still paying 21p-27p per kWh, well above pre-crisis rates. With solar, you're generating your own electricity, side-stepping market volatility, and locking in predictable costs.

Is commercial solar right for your business?

Commercial solar isn't complicated - it's a clear win for cutting costs, hitting sustainability targets, and taking control of your energy future. If you're ready to crunch the numbers for your business, book a free, no-obligation commercial solar assessment with Heatable.
