

Blue carbon conservation is vital to PNG's efforts to meet its climate goals, including its commitments under the Paris Agreement. These ecosystems naturally sequester large amounts of ...

in Papua New Guinea, aimed at enhancing efficiency, reducing costs and emissions, strengthening resilience to climate risks, and supporting integration into regional and global supply chains. The ...

Port Moresby, Papua New Guinea - As part of its efforts to reduce global greenhouse gas emissions, the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) launched the US$16M (K56 Million) ...

Here are the 3 greenest hotels in Port Moresby based on the latest emissions data

Port Moresby, 01 May 2024 - Key stakeholders from diverse sectors convened in Port Moresby today to discuss the advancement of sustainable transportation solutions in Papua New Guinea (PNG).

Port Moresby is gradually increasing its investment in renewable energy sources to reduce its carbon footprint and improve energy security. Solar energy is particularly promising, with ...

Papua New Guinea has received a landmark USD 63.4M in results-based payments from the Green Climate Fund (GCF) in reducing 17 million tonnes of CO2...

The project aimed to improve stakeholders' capacity to comply with regulations and procedures related to logging activities and promoting technical development related to natural ...

Key government agencies and partners gathered for the Final Internal Validation Meeting of the Papua New Guinea (PNG) Blue Carbon Policy Roadmap on August 15, 2025 at the Climate ...

Once adopted, it will provide a guiding framework to support national blue carbon initiatives, strengthen climate resilience, and protect vital marine and coastal ecosystems.

Web: <https://rrrprojects.co.za>